

WARRANTY

All MaxAir Trampolines products are guaranteed free of defects upon delivery. All frames are guaranteed with a 5-Year Warranty and all fly beds are guaranteed with a 1-Year Warranty, from date indicated by bill of lading or upon receipt of delivery. MaxAir Trampolines fly beds are proven durable and designed for specific spring stretching with specific distances from the frame to ensure tension of the trampoline bed does not reach nor exceed maximum load. Under normal conditions with annual maintenance, fly beds can last for 5-8 years when used with proper attire. Due to the many uses and variations in the amount and type of wear, we are unable to warranty our fly beds without the use of our springs and frame under approved installation guidelines. In the event an individual string breaks, adhere to our string repair guide using only approved string repair kits. Any alterations to our products that have not been met with prior approval voids all guarantees and warranties. Warranty only valid following proper installation. Warranty voided for any product subjected to abuse, misuse, neglect, negligence, accident, improper testing, improper installation, improper storage, improper handling, abnormal physical stress, abnormal environmental conditions or used contrary to the intended use. All claims relating to these Warranties must be made during the Warranty Period, and any claims not made during such time shall be waived. Examples of extreme uses that may degrade beds faster and are not recommended include but are not limited to: bouncing with shoes on, multiple people bouncing, bouncing using snowboards with sharp edges, bouncing using skis with sharp edges, and using unapproved springs which can bottom out causing strings to overstretch and wear quicker. Clothing with hooks, rivets, buttons and snaps can also damage the fly bed. For specific general care, maintenance and safety procedures to ensure your warranty remains in effect, please refer to your MaxAir Trampolines User Guide for best practices. These terms are subject to change and are non-negotiable.